FloCon 2021 Invites Abstracts on Using Data to Defend

FloCon has opened its call for participation in the 2021 conference on the theme of “Using Data to Defend.” The international conference on data analysis for security invites operational analysts, tool developers, researchers, security professionals, and others to submit abstracts for presentations, posters, and demonstrations by August 14.

Due to uncertainties related to the COVID-19 pandemic, FloCon 2021 will be a virtual event, held online January 11-14.

“FloCon attendees can expect presenters to share fresh insights into new threats, adaptations to the new normal, and unique perspectives on the security landscape,” said Joshua Fallon, a network defense analyst in the SEI’s CERT Division and chair of FloCon 2021.
